COMMUNITY RESOURCE & SERVICE GUIDE

A RESOURCE FOR PARENTS & THEIR CHILDREN

Produced by
COLUMBIA VALLEY EARLY YEARS CENTRE

"Early Years acknowledges that we deliver services on the unceded shared territories of the Ktunaxa and the Secwepemc people and the chosen home of the Columbia Valley Métis Chartered Community"

Columbia Valley Community Resource and Service Guide

The Columbia Valley Community Resource and Service Guide is a resource for families living throughout the Columbia Valley. This Guide is designed to provide residents with information about community agencies, organizations and service providers for families and their children, including area elementary schools, playgrounds, sporting and recreation opportunities.

Community Profile

The Columbia Valley is located along the western slopes of the Rocky Mountains with a geographic stretching 100 kilometers north from Spillimacheen, British Columbia to southern BC's Canal Flats area. In between, lay the communities of Brisco, Edgewater, Radium Hot Springs, Wilmer, Panorama, Invermere, Windermere and Fairmont Hot Springs. You will find that many of the services listed in this guide are centrally located in Invermere, however services are provided throughout the Columbia Valley.

There are approximately 9,000 permanent residents in the Columbia Valley. The area is a popular tourist destination because of its beautiful, abundant landscapes and its lakes, parks, hot springs, ski hills and golf courses.

Celebrate your child's development!

The first 5 years of a child's development are critical, so the sooner you catch a delay or possible learning issue, the sooner you can help connect children with services and support that will make a real difference. That's why you'll love the Ages & Stages Questionnaires™ (ASQ) - the parent-completed developmental and social-emotional screening tool professionals have trusted for more than 15 years to help pinpoint potential issues early on.

ASQ is a simple questionnaire for parents and caregivers. Based on the child's age, it asks specific questions to help track your child's development in: communication, gross and fine motor functionality, problem solving, personal and social skills.

Early screening and intervention can decrease the need for services and support later in life, improve or prevent behavioural issues, increase scholastic success and increase a child's self-esteem as well as her/his resiliency skills.

1. Provide resource information and emotional support;
2. Coordinate efforts with other organizations and service providers; and
3. Offer assistance grants for emergency medical needs

The organization's region covers more than three-quarters of the province, including the East Kootenay area. Aid provided by the BC Friends of Children is not diagnosis-specific. In 2012, the BC Friends of Children supported over 200 East Kootenay and Northern British Columbia children with a variety of diverse medical needs.

Canadian Tire JumpStart Program

Contact Information:

Address: 1317 7th Avenue, Invermere, BC

Telephone: 250-342-5566

Website: www.familydynamix.ca

One-in-three Canadian families cannot afford to enroll their children in organized sports and/or physical activities (Vision Critical, 2011) which means that many are missing out on the benefits that come with organized play. The Canadian Tire Jumpstart Program is a nationally registered charity dedicated to removing financial barriers so children across Canada have the opportunity to get off the sidelines and into the games.

Whether it's the chance to try a sport for the very first time or to continue with a favorite physical activity, Jumpstart makes it possible for all children to participate. Jumpstart equips children for life because quality physical activity does more than improve health and well being, it helps build confidence, leadership, productivity and creativity for the future.

Jumpstart helps those aged 4-18 by assisting with the costs associated with registration, equipment and/or transportation for sports and physical activity programming.

Jumpstart's unique charity model involves working with an extensive network of 330 local Jumpstart Chapters in communities across Canada, whose members are volunteers and community leaders committed to helping get children active and healthy. These Chapters work collectively with over 3,100 country-wide Jumpstart Community Partners, such as: the local Municipal Parks and Recreation Departments, the local Boys and Girls Clubs and the YMCA/YWCA. The Chapters help willing participants submit applications for Jumpstart funding, as well as, identify those from financially disadvantaged families who would benefit from participating in sports and physical activity programming. These Chapters and community partners play a key role in Jumpstart's success; ensuring funds are directed to those who need it most.

Applications for assistance can typically be submitted each year from January 15th to November 1st (dates may vary depending on the Chapter). The two main goals of funding applicants are: to ensure equitable distribution of funding for Spring/Summer and Fall/Winter activities; and to focus on maximizing the cost and length of participation per activity per child.

For more information on how to apply call 1-877-616-6600 and an operator will assist in connecting you with a representative of a local Jumpstart Chapter in your area who will guide you through the application process. All information received is kept confidential.

Caring for New Kids to Canada

Contact Information:

Website: www.kidsnewtocanada.ca

Caring for New Kids to Canada is intended to help health professionals provide quality care to immigrant and refugee children and youth. The Caring for New Kids to Canada's website provides key resources to help you learn about working with newcomer families. The key areas addressed are:

- Medical Assessment: Details on both the clinical and communication aspects of an immigrant or refugee child's first visit with a physician, including history-taking, the physical exam, lab tests and follow-up visits. Also offered are suggestions for health professionals to help build trust with the patient and their family.
- Using Interpreters: How do you provide effective care when there is a language barrier between you and your patient or the patient's family? Should children be asked to interpret for their parents? This document provides some guidance.
- Travel-Related Illness: Immigrants travel frequently to their home countries to visit relatives and friends. This document discusses potential risks and pre-travel advice.
- An Overview of Immigrants and Refugees in Canada: Provides details on recent Canadian immigration patterns, such as top countries of origin. It also describes how the Canadian government classifies immigrants and refugees which is important in understanding health care coverage for newcomers.
- Cultural Competence: Describes why health professionals need to be sensitive to differences between their own and their patients' cultural backgrounds and offers suggestions for providing culturally effective care.
- Case Studies: Short vignettes intended to help clinicians become more aware of specific issues faced by children and youth new to Canada.
- Community Resources: A list of local resources from across Canada that offer settlement and other social services to newcomers. Useful for health care professionals who want to help immigrant and refugees access community support.

Columbia Basin Alliance for Literacy (CBAL)

Contact Information:

Sandy Kalesnikoff, Community Literacy Coordinator

Email: skalesnikoff@cbal.org

Website: www.cbal.org

Telephone: 250-409-4251

Formed in 2001, CBAL is a not-for-profit organization that promotes literacy and lifelong learning throughout the Columbia Basin and boundary regions.

CBAL partners with community organizations to develop, promote and deliver services to help citizens of all ages improve their literacy skills, and engage in life-long learning.

In addition to programs and services for adults and school-aged children, CBAL works with others service providers in the community to deliver services and programs for children age 0-6.

CBAL is the administrative agent for the Community Action Program for Children (CAPC) that offers family programs in Canal Flats and for the Columbia Valley Early Years Coalition. Some important facts about this organization's work include:

- CBAL Windermere partners with School District 6 to manage Strong Start Outreach Programs;
- CBAL facilitates the Baby Goose, Baby Talk program in Invermere at Eileen Madison Primary;
- CBAL supports Books for Babies through the Invermere Public Library, Public Health, and the Columbia Valley Early Years Coalition; and
- All programs facilitated by CBAL are free of charge to parents and children.

CBAL can help, if you or someone you know:

- Is a parent who wants to learn more about literacy development in young children;
- Is an adult who wants to improve reading, writing, math, English skills or basic computer skills; or
- Is an adult immigrant or refugee who would like to improve their English language skills.

Website: www.groundswellnetwork.ca

Formed in 2000, the Columbia Valley Botanical Gardens (CVBG) focuses on the development of community and school gardens in the Upper Columbia Region. Like the mission of all botanical gardens around the world, the CVBG sought to develop plant collections and gardens that protected plant species and presented them to people to advance our understanding of values associated with biodiversity, spiritual, educational and economic value – essentially showing how plants are an integral part of human survival and quality of all life on earth.

Today, the CVBG is now Groundswell Network Society, but we have not abandoned our roots to the plant world, but rather we have added value and broadened our scope to include all areas of human activity as it affects our sustainable future. Renewable energy, water, food, plants, green transportation, local economic development; these are just a few of the areas Groundswell continues to deliver successful projects at the community level. In reality, all of these projects relate to the living world of which plants are a vital component.

Through the Child's Eyes

Imagine walking into a warm greenhouse filled with plants that smell good. Ten months out of the year the Community Greenhouse stays a comfortable 15-25 degrees Celsius. Raised beds are growing a variety of vegetables and beautiful flowers. There are benches, tables and chairs, but groups rarely sit because there is so much to do and see. This is the Community Greenhouse learning laboratory.

Throughout the year, people of all ages come to engage in applied sustainable living skills. The Greenhouse offers programming to all ages. From weekly pre-school “plant and play” to evening and weekend course on permaculture, backyard chickens, vermiculture (composting with red wiggler worms), greenhouse design, vegetable growing, cheese and bread making, film nights, farmer's markets and harvest dinners.

By calling 8-1-1, you can speak to a health services representative, who can help you find health information and services; or connect you directly with a registered nurse, a registered dietitian or a pharmacist. Any one of these healthcare professionals will help you get the information you need to manage your health concerns or those of your family.

HealthLinkBC provides the following services:

- Nurses: At any time of the day or night, every day of the year, you can call 8-1-1 to ask a registered nurse your health questions. Our nurses are available to help you with non-emergency health concerns, to discuss symptoms and procedures and recommend whether you should see a health care provider in person.
- Pharmacists: You can call 8-1-1 to talk to a pharmacist about your medication questions. Our pharmacists are on call at 8-1-1 when your community pharmacist may be unavailable - every night from 5 pm to 9 am.

Columbia Valley Community Resource and Service Guide

- Dietitians: Registered dietitians are available to answer your healthy eating and nutrition questions by phone at 8-1-1, or you can Email a HealthLinkBC Dietitian. Our dietitians are available from 9am to 5pm Monday to Friday.
- Health Services Representatives: When you call 8-1-1, you will speak to a health services representative who will direct your call to the HealthLinkBC service that fits your needs. Our health services representatives can also help you find your way in the B.C. health care system. Whether you are looking for the closest walk-in clinic, travel clinic, or want to know where to take your child for immunizations, the Navigation Services team at HealthLinkBC will direct you to the services you need, closest to where you live. Our health services representative can also answer your questions about the B.C. Smoking Cessation Program, and register you for Nicotine Replacement Therapy (NRT). For more information, call 8-1-1 or visit our B.C. Smoking Cessation program web page.
- Translation Services: 8-1-1 provides translation services on request in more than 130 languages.

Hospice of the Columbia Valley is a holistic form of palliative care which aims to make the last months of life comfortable and peaceful for patients, their families and their caregivers. Hospice improves quality of life, not only for patients, but also for their family and friends.

The Hospice of the Columbia Valley considers the patient, family, medical representatives, social workers and caregivers as an integral team. Hospice is not a place, it is a concept. The focus is on caring, not curing; on life, not death. Quality of life, family wellness, community involvement and personal dignity are all part of hospice care's compassion and progressive vision.

Infant Development Program

Contact Information:

Telephone: 250-426-2543

Email: idp.invermere@ccssebc.com

The East Kootenay Infant Development Program is a family-centered service. The program recognizes the family as the constant and most important influence in a child's life. It works with each family to identify their individual needs and assists in finding the resources and support that will be most beneficial to each family.

The East Kootenay Infant Development Program provides information, resources and support for families who have a child between birth and three years of age who:

- Has a diagnosed disability; or
- Is experiencing a developmental delay; or
- Is at risk for a developmental delay.

Program services include:

- Home visits to encourage progress, develop new activities and support parents;
- Information on a wide range of child development topics;
- Developmental monitoring and/or assessments and written reports;
- Consultation and referral to other Early Years Intervention and Therapy services;
- Resource lending library;
- Assistance with preschool or childcare planning and transition; and
- Parenting and/or play groups with other families.

Referrals may come from any source, including self-referral. Family participation is voluntary and free of charge, and information gathered is confidential. Once you are referred to the program, a consultant will arrange to visit you in your home or another location that is convenient and comfortable for you and your child.

Interior Health and Invermere Health Unit

Contact Information:

Address: 850 10th Avenue, Invermere, BC

Telephone: 250-342-2360

Website: www.interiorhealth.ca

Hours of Operation:

Monday to Friday: 830am to 4:30pm (closed from noon to 1:00)

The Interior Health and Invermere Health Unit promote healthy lifestyles and provide needed health services in a timely, caring and efficient manner to the highest professional and quality standards. Interior Health operates the Invermere and District Hospital. Interior Health also administers health services for families such as: pediatric occupational therapists, pediatric physiotherapists and early intervention speech pathologist.

The Invermere Health Centre offers a wide range of services to children and their families including:

- Ages and Stages Questionnaire: The Community/Public Health Nurses screen children at six months of age for any developmental delays with the ASQ resources. Further, with the initiative of the Columbia Valley Early Years Coalition, nurses will also provide a second screening to children at 18 months. Children who are at risk of developmental delays at this age will be referred to the Infant Development Program.
- Breastfeeding Support: Breastfeeding is the healthiest way to feed your baby. There are many benefits to breastfeeding for both mother and baby. The community nurses offer at-home visits to support new parents with breastfeeding while also offering additional information on other important topics.

- Dietician Services: Interior Health Dietitian services provide nutrition expertise to ensure quality nutrition care and support for you, your family and broader health care team. Furthermore, Interior Health has a Community Nutritionist who works with community groups, early childhood programs, school districts, organizations, healthy professionals, educators and local government to support and promote healthy eating at a broader population and policy level.
- Early Hearing Screening: Early detection of hearing loss, followed by early and comprehensive intervention, makes a significant difference to the quality of life for an individual. Interior Health Audiology focuses on prevention services for people age 0-19 years residing in the Columbia Valley.
- Healthy from the Start: The program offers information and resources to promote healthy pregnancy. Whether you're planning on becoming pregnant or in week 28 of your pregnancy, it's nice to have resources available to help answer your questions.
- Immunization: Vaccines work! They save lives and prevent illness by protecting individuals and communities from the spread of disease. Although the routine immunization schedule starts with infants at two months of age, immunizations are important throughout the life span. Protect yourself and your loved ones, make sure that everyone is up-to-date with all recommended vaccines for their age.
- Parental Services: Information to help you during your pregnancy and preparation for the birth of your baby. This program aims to support you and your family through a safe and satisfying pregnancy, birth and postpartum experience.
- School Health: This program aims to create healthy schools. Interior Health believes that a healthy school contributes to the safety and health of our children and our youth. Working together, we can create the healthiest schools possible. Parents of school-aged children can contact us for information about their child's health.
- Speech and Language Pathologist: Early detection and support can help a child having difficulties with speech and language to match their peers by the time they start kindergarten. Speech and language pathologists will help with pronunciation, language comprehension and use, social communication and voice, hearing, or stuttering problems. Anyone can refer a child from birth to pre-school age, with the parents' consent. Families with children who are about to enter kindergarten should contact the school district for service.
- Lift the Lip/Fluoride Varnish Program: For children 12-47 months of age. This free program provides preventive education and fluoride varnish applications for children within this age that meet the eligibility requirements.

Shaken Baby Syndrome Prevention Program (SBSP)

Contact Information:

Address: 850 10th Avenue, Invermere, BC

Telephone: 250-342-2360

Website: www.interiorhealth.ca

This Shaken Baby Syndrome Prevention Program (SBSP) works to prevent shaken baby syndrome (the Period of Purple Crying) through province-wide community-based education.

Using a child development model, the Period of Purple Crying © focuses on infant crying, especially inconsolable crying and its connection to shaken baby syndrome. Program materials, which are distributed at birthing hospitals to parents of newborns, include a booklet and 10-minute DVD that address three basic concepts:

1. Shaking any infant or child is very dangerous;
2. Early infant crying and even colic is a normal part of infant development; and
3. Frustration over early infant crying is the most common trigger for shaking infant or child.

The program's goals are to create a cultural change in parents' understanding and response to infant crying, and to reduce the number of cases of abusive head trauma by 50 percent.

Quality Child Care Checklist

Research has shown that the first six years of a child's life are the most important part of learning cognitive, physical, social, creative and emotional skills. For many children, child care providers are a large part of those formative years; therefore, quality child care access is critical.

Children who have established positive relationships with their child care provider are happier and comfortable in their child care setting. This is a great indicator of quality child care.

The Quality Child Care Checklist includes the following:

1. Staff and program facilitators with up-to-date first aid and CPR training in case of emergency.
2. Character references, indicating that practitioners genuinely enjoy interacting with children, can make children feel secure while providing the necessary individual attention.
3. Medical references, indicating that they are mentally and physically capable of caring for children.
4. Develop policies to cover child care guidance, nutrition, vacation, arrival/ departure, fees, health, and safety.
5. Ongoing education to understand children's differences; be able to recognize behaviours that indicate that a child may need additional support or referral services.
6. Criminal Record Check of all staff or people over the age of 12 who work/ reside at the facility.
7. Liability insurance coverage for the providers and children.
8. Vehicle insurance coverage for transportation of providers and children.
9. Licensed child care provider access to building/fire inspection reports as well as any/all licensing reports.
10. All child care providers are required to follow the legal ratios of staff/ facilitators-to-children.
11. Age-appropriate programming covering a variety of interests and developmental levels, including both indoor and outdoor activities.

10 ways raising a physically literate child is like raising a reader

By: Richard Monette

In late August I picked up a local paper in a coffee shop. Looking at all the “back to school” inserts, my heart sank. “Summer is coming to an end,” I whispered as I scanned the advertising for binders, calculators, and sharpies.

On the last page a little card intended for parents caught my attention: “How to raise a reader”. After reading it I realized that I could easily replace the word “reader” with the words “physically literate child”.

So, to celebrate the collective sigh of relief from parents, also known as “back to school time”, here are 10 ways helping your child become a better reader and someone who loves to read are similar to helping them develop physical literacy and a love of being active:

1. Make reading/physical literacy a family value

Kids are born to play. They are born to run, jump, and skip. They learn by emulating what they see around them. Play as a family. Go out and enjoy learning new skills, activities, and games.

2. Let them read what they enjoy/do the physical activities they enjoy

Pleasure is the greatest incentive. Kids will do what they enjoy. They will also enjoy what they are good at. This means that they might repeat a game over and over. Support and reward all games, sport, or activity your kids enjoy. And make sure you play with them.

3. Be sure they are reading/playing at an appropriate level

Remember one simple rule as you support your child in activities and sports: every kid must do the right things at the right times under the right conditions. You don't expect your first-grader to read Shakespeare, so don't push them into doing physical activities that they are not ready to do. More importantly, don't enroll them in programs that might be beyond their age. Instead, keep play simple and age-appropriate.

4. Don't use reading/physical activity as a punishment.

I cringe when I see a coach or a PE teacher use physical activities as a punishment (“10 push ups for being last.”). Reverse the trend. Promote play, games, and activities as a reward. As something special to be cherished.

5. Give books/equipment as a gift

Gifts are special. They spark excitement and kids’ imaginations. Try to give your child toys that will encourage them to be active and promote the joy of playing.

6. Let your kids see you read/be active for fun

You have a powerful modeling effect on your child. If your child sees you enjoying being active, then they will see games, activities, and sport as a normal and worthwhile part of life.

7. Don’t over-correct, don’t over-practice

One way to make certain your kids will resent reading is by pushing them to read perfectly too early. The same applies to their love of being active. Mistakes are a critical part of developing as a reader or becoming a physically literate child. Support, encourage, and guide your child.

8. Point out words/physical activity everywhere

Humans are born to move. We are physical beings. From the prima ballerinas to top athletes, we love to see great displays of physical aptitude. But don’t forget the everyday display of skills. Encourage your child to recognize these skills everywhere. Point out everyday examples of physical ability: “Look at that firefighter climbing the ladder. What skills does she need to do that?”

9. Set aside time for kids to read/be active on their own

Free play is essential for kids. Be sure to encourage them to play by themselves without a tablet or computer.

10. Fun, fun, and more fun

Not every child will become an avid reader or a world-class athlete. However, both literacy and physical literacy are fundamental to the development of your kids. Most youngsters are born with the capacity to read and move well, but like any other skill, it must be learned and repeated on a regular basis so that it becomes second nature. Fun and enjoyment are the secret ingredients to learning new skills.

8 ways to tell if your child is physically literate

By: Jim Grove

How do you know if your child is developing physical literacy? Here are eight simple tests. If you answer yes to a question, chalk one up for physical literacy. If you answer no, your child probably needs some attention in that area.

Physical literacy is about developing the fundamental movement skills that all children need, such as running, hopping, throwing, catching and jumping. These movement skills in turn give kids the confidence to participate in different physical activities, sports, and games.

1. Forward roll

Can your child do a forward roll on the floor? The forward roll is a basic gymnastic movement that shows your child has developed a reasonable degree of flexibility and coordination, as well as proprioception (knowing where the body is as it moves through space).

2. One-leg balance test

Ask your child to stand on one foot for 30 seconds. Get them to put their hands on their hips and lift the knee of their non-standing leg as high as possible. If they start hopping all over the place or falling over, they need to work on balance. Then try the other foot.

3. Swim (comfortable in water)

Can your child swim? Swimming is at the core of water sports and is an essential skill for lifetime safety around the water (important when you consider that 75% of our planet's surface is covered in water).

4. Throw a ball

It may seem a bit corny, but the ability to throw a ball is a good measure of a child's overall coordination, and it's an essential skill used in many sports.

5. Strike an object

Can your child hit a ball with a bat? A puck with a hockey stick? A badminton bird with a racquet?

6. Land from jumping

Watch your child as they jump from a low bench or your deck. Do they land with their knees aligned above their feet and sink smoothly into a squat? Or do their knees collapse inwards and their legs wobble around?

7. Flat-footed squat

Can your child do a flat-footed squat from a standing position and then stand up again? This movement indicates flexibility, coordination, balance, and strength.

8. Confidence to try sports

Is your child confident when trying new physical activities or sports? Kids who have a reasonable degree of physical literacy are eager to try new sports and activities.

Physical literacy is one of the most important gifts we can give our children. By developing physical literacy, children gain the skills and the confidence to be active for life.

Lake Windermere Whiteway

The Whiteway was created in 2006 by the Toby Creek Nordic Ski Club. The Whiteway was developed to connect the communities along Lake Windermere during the winter months. It offers 2 access points: one at Kinsmen beach in Invermere and one at Windermere Beach.

In 2014 the Lake Windermere Whiteway was named the world's longest skating trail by Guinness World Records. At over 30km in length, this multi-use trail offers ice-skating as well as groomed skate and classic cross-country ski trails.

The Whiteway provides winter sports enthusiasts an incredible facility, adding to the already abundant list of winter activities available in the stunning Columbia Valley.

The Whiteway stays in world-class shape through each season thanks to maintenance performed by the Toby Creek Nordic Ski Club. The club asks for a small donation fee of $5 per use which can be deposited in the drop boxes at the information kiosks along the trail.
